The joy of Jordan

QAIA wins first place in region, third worldwide among airports in its size category!

Queen Alia International Airport (QAIA) has been named the best airport of its size in the Middle East, and has tied for third place amongst airports of its size worldwide.
The announcement made by the Airport Council International (ACI) was based on the results of the 2016 Airport Service Quality (ASQ) Survey.

QAIA was awarded first place in the category "Best Airport by Size and Region: Middle East", which comprises airports serving 5 to 15 million passengers annually within the region. It also came in second place in the overall "Best Airport by Region: Middle East" category.

On the global level, QAIA tied for third place in the "Best Airport by Size" category with four other airports of the same annual passenger capacity around the world.

Royal Jordanian operates from/to Queen Alia International Airport some 450 weekly flights to 56 destinations worldwide. Along with its oneworld partners, Royal Jordanian is servicing over 1,000 destinations all over the globe.
